"The theme of this convention - as underlined by Giampaolo Crenca, president of ISOA, which represents the Italian actuaries at international level, and president of the organizing committee - is very fascinating and challenging.

The figure of the Actuary, a professional that has been topping personnel search rankings all over the world for years, is projected into a much wider dimension and one of increasingly high professional and managerial level. The Florence event is the ideal continuation of some topics already touched on during the last Congress of Actuaries, held last November in Rome". AFIR-ERM, which gives its name to the conference, is the section of the International Actuarial Association (IAA) that promotes actuarial research on financial risk and business risk management.
